Portrait of Youth

This is a face;
The face of Youth,
The face of Youth searching for something:
Seeking Knowledge
Seeking Truth
Seeking Life
Seeking Himself.

These are two eyes;
Two eyes searching with keen intent,
Two eyes, two eyes devouring all that pass before them,
Two eyes demanding of the past the secret of the future.

These are two ears;
Two ears listening with deep perception,
Two ears, two ears straining to catch the sounds of life,
Two ears preserving the progress of the present for the files of the future.

This is a mouth;
Soft lips smiling with serious serenity,
Soft lips, bright teeth laughing inwardly at life itself,
A mouth framing for the future phrases to change destinies, make history.

These are two hands;
The hands of Youth,
Clean, smooth hands reaching for something:
Grasping Knowledge
Clasping Friends
Groping for Truth
Searching for Himself.

This is a Portrait,
A Portrait of Youth,
A Portrait of Us,
For We are the Youth.

L'Artiste Suprême

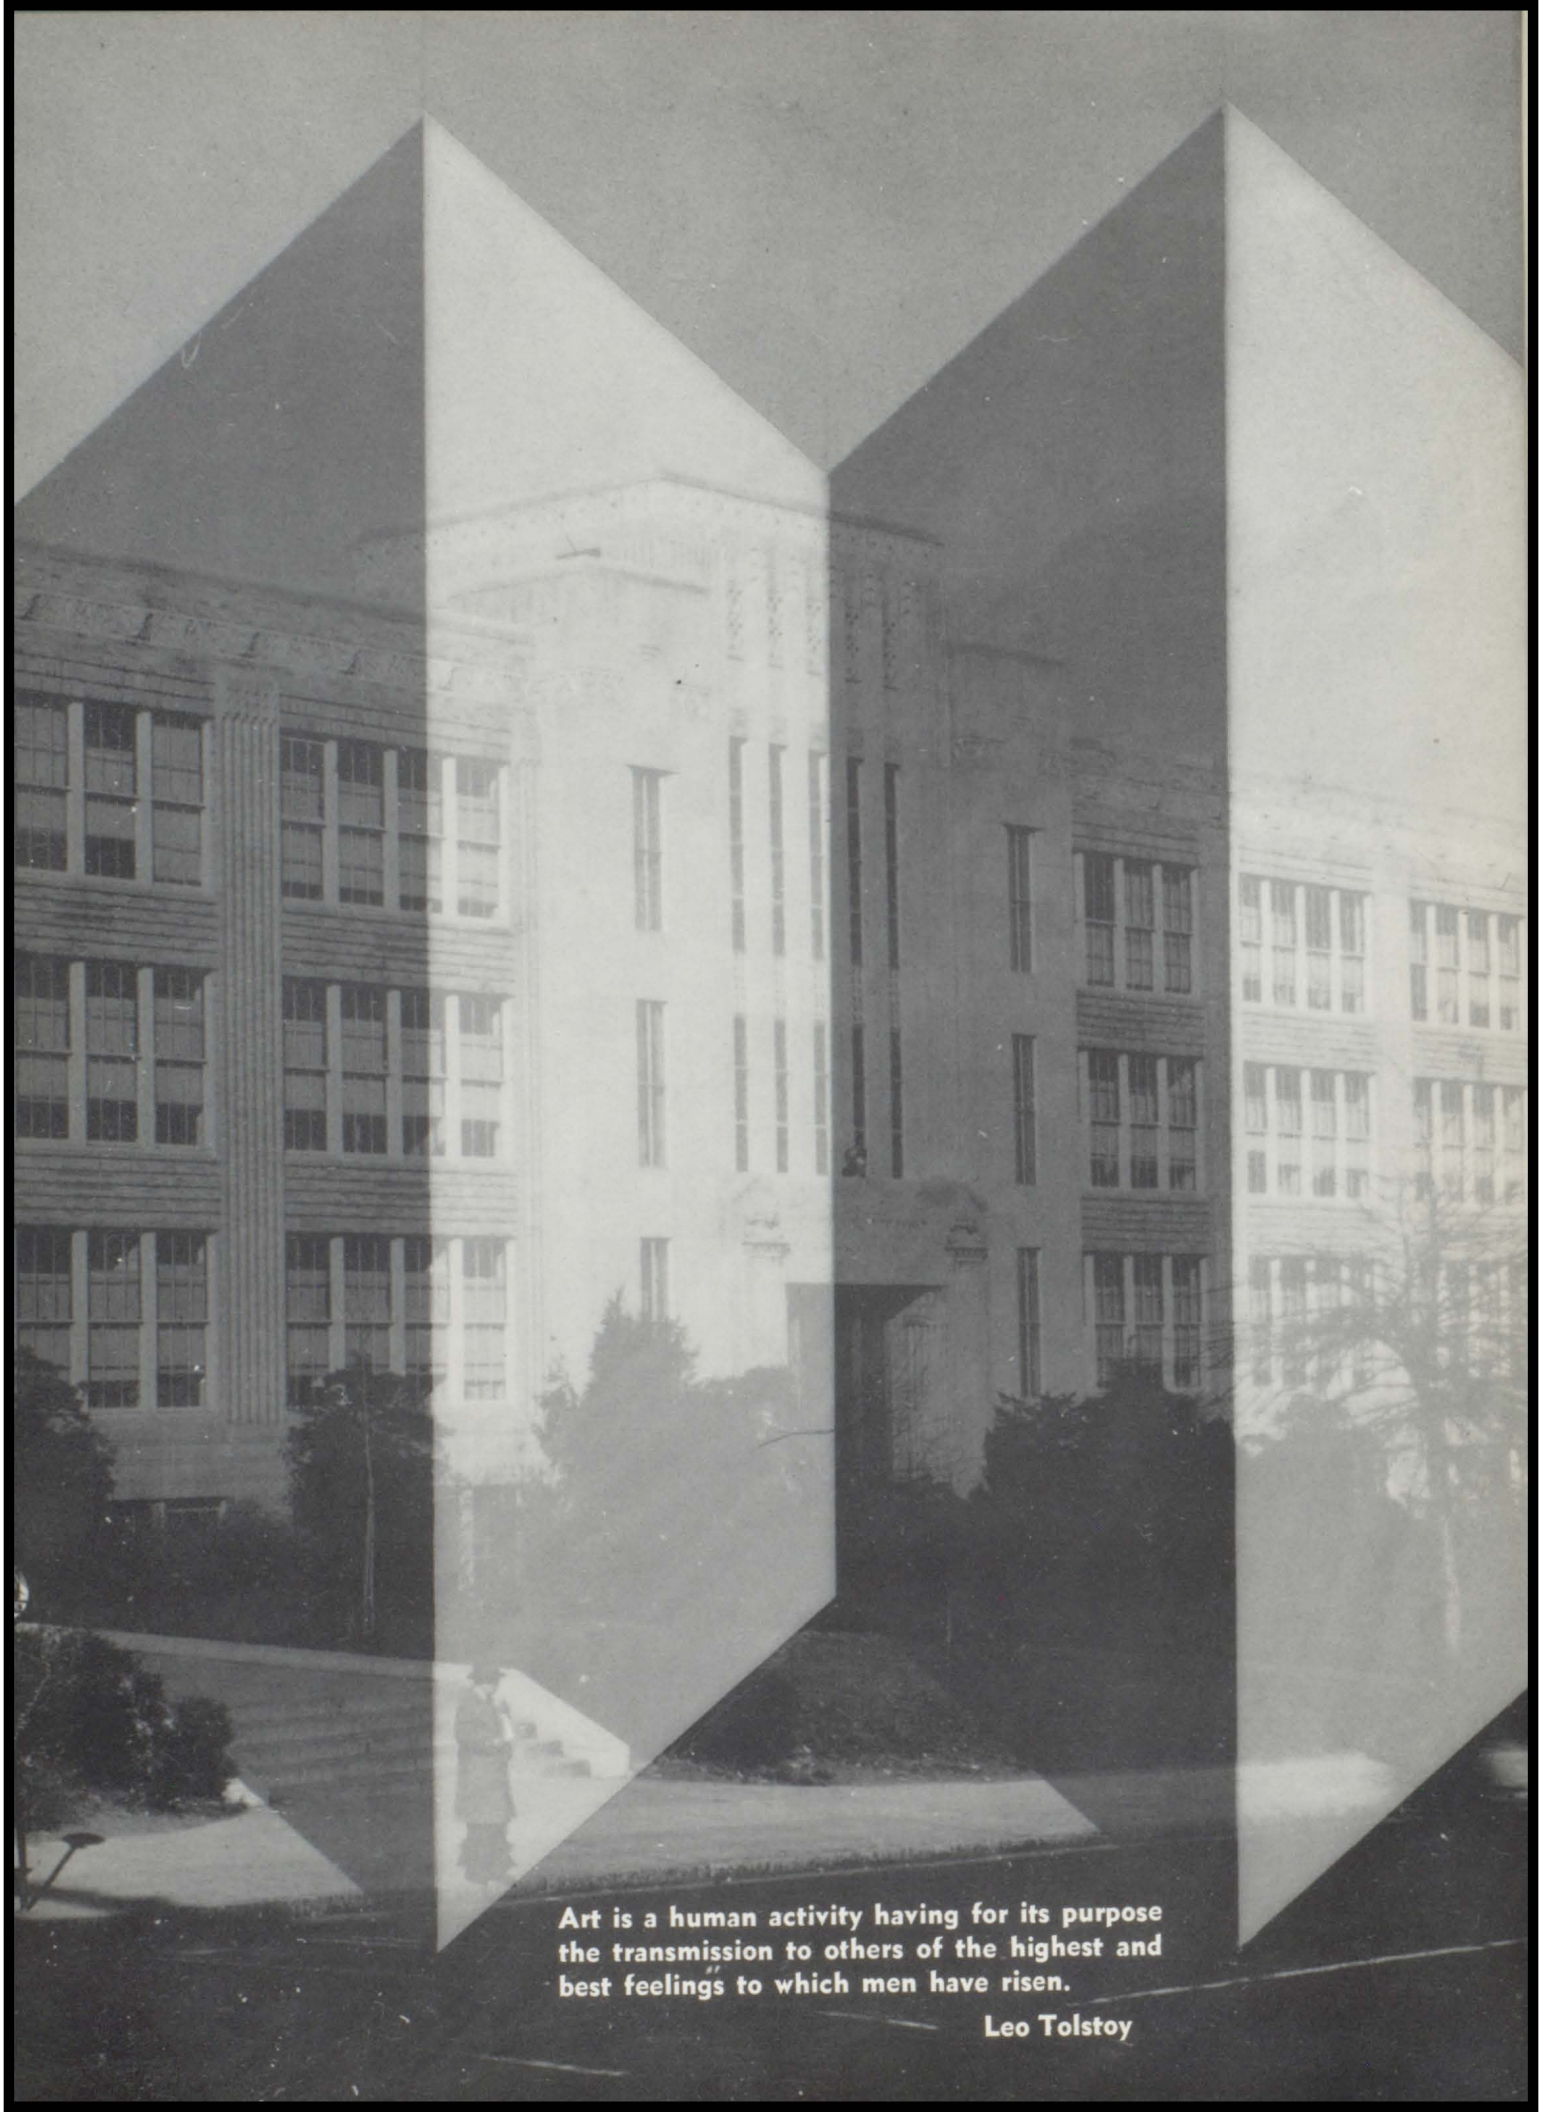

Dina Hirsch

What skillful artistry it takes
To, from so many parts, a whole produce;
To take each line, each form, each hue,
And find for each its proper place;

To take a canvas filled with lines
And to it, somehow, add oneself;
Devotion to an unrewarding job
Majestic makes the finished work.

Sincerity in every stroke you put
On this, the canvas of our class,
Breathed life into its every part,
And made this work, the artist's greatest pride.

Art is a human activity having for its purpose the transmission to others of the highest and best feelings to which men have risen.

PRINCIPAL

Outside the protective walls of Weequahic, an apparently grim, competitive, and troubled world awaits you. The cheery routine of class attendance, the security of friendly fellowship, the defined procession of planned courses and activities, the sympathy and understanding of teachers, the controlled pattern of orderly activity — all abruptly fall away as graduation looms ahead, and you probably envy the juniors as they amiably go about the sort of school business that once was yours. The deserted halls of the school after the exercises on graduation night will be filled with the empty ghosts of happy reminiscences.

Don't hesitate, however, to cut loose the ties, to step boldly into that outside world and to feel confident that it contains a place for you and will welcome you to come and take that place. It is there for you, but you must seek it out. Have confidence — you will find it.

In Art, the theme of your Yearbook, proper perspective is always a major factor. Proper perspective is also necessary in the years to come as you fit yourself into the society of which you are a part.

From the school, I extend best wishes for good luck in the searching years ahead.

Vanishing Point

A September morn in the year 1955, a lone figure, his grammar school diploma in his pocket, set out from security to face insecurity. He urged himself forward to meet the unknown, the ominous building known to the initiated as the Annex.

Alone. Alone in a crowd of three hundred fifty unfamiliar faces. Tumult seemed to surround and suffocate him, until one face, then another, took familiar shape. Common solitude became common bond.

How difficult this first year would be! This was the first time he was required to take notes in class; never before had he crammed into the night for tests; and then, a world opened apart from his studies. He felt so young and unprepared.

As the Annex year drew to a close, his class had achieved a unity to which he had contributed. Braving jests of others, he had tried out for the leading male role in the Annex production of Junior Miss. He settled for the job of prompter, but was proud to take some part, small, but significant. He had made a place for himself in the strange crowd of months before.

Summer moved toward autumn and the novice looked to the beginning of his main building career.

* * *

That first day there was something incongruous about the overwhelming quality of the number of corridors, rooms, and the natural, orderly orientation procedures. He, the sophomore, could see the barriers he would have to overcome. He would make a name for himself.

This he did. He went up "down" stairways; he, lost, was never on time for class; and he was a "touch" for every senior offering elevator passes, advance answers to the patch test, and special schedules with double lunches and no majors.

School work became more difficult. Nose to the grindstone and shoulder to the wheel, he struggled. How he worked in this position is wondrous but his diligence was rewarded on report card day.

Social activities offered a happy diversion. The first O.B.A. dance was a square dance to which he started with dread, because he had heard about "those" dances. His good time gave him fun and taught him not to be a "follower."

Like others, he found classmates with whom he was particularly compatible, and suddenly, he, too, was a member of a clique. Still, the cliques interrelated and the class operated well as an integrated whole.

Excused early for the 2A picnic, he with his class, tumbled into buses and arrived at Verona Park. Skin-soaked by sun showers and/or lake water, spirits were undampened — and unmanageable.

* * *

Experienced now, he was anxious to assume the status of upperclassman. His almost arrogant self-confidence was immediately assailed by NOISE — hammers, saws, drills, shouts. Throughout the year a friendly battle was to rage between faculty with students and workmen with supervisors. Good-natured sufferance prevailed on the expectation that the outcome was to be a "new" Weequahic.

The next demand which took him down a second peg was advanced history and math courses, which offered higher college standing and more tests, homework, term papers. His reward was soon to come: Weequahic placed high above the national average on the Merit Scholarship Test.

Things were not so bad that his increasing social obligations were neglected. The first class election provided the transition from study to pleasure concentration.

A square dance set the pace for junior year activities. Happy memories of his first O.B.A. dance gave him great expectations which were realized. Being with only his classmates gave the class and the evening their own personality.

The class personality deepened and stretched via the 3A-4B Play, (This time he was cast for the male lead role in You Can't Take It With You.) and the 3A Picnic (The afternoon was one of fun, food, and folly at Watchung Reservation.) He looked forward to senior-ity.

* * *

He was a senior. Schoolwork and homework were the antidotes to his social engagements. He took time for the special business of election of class officers.

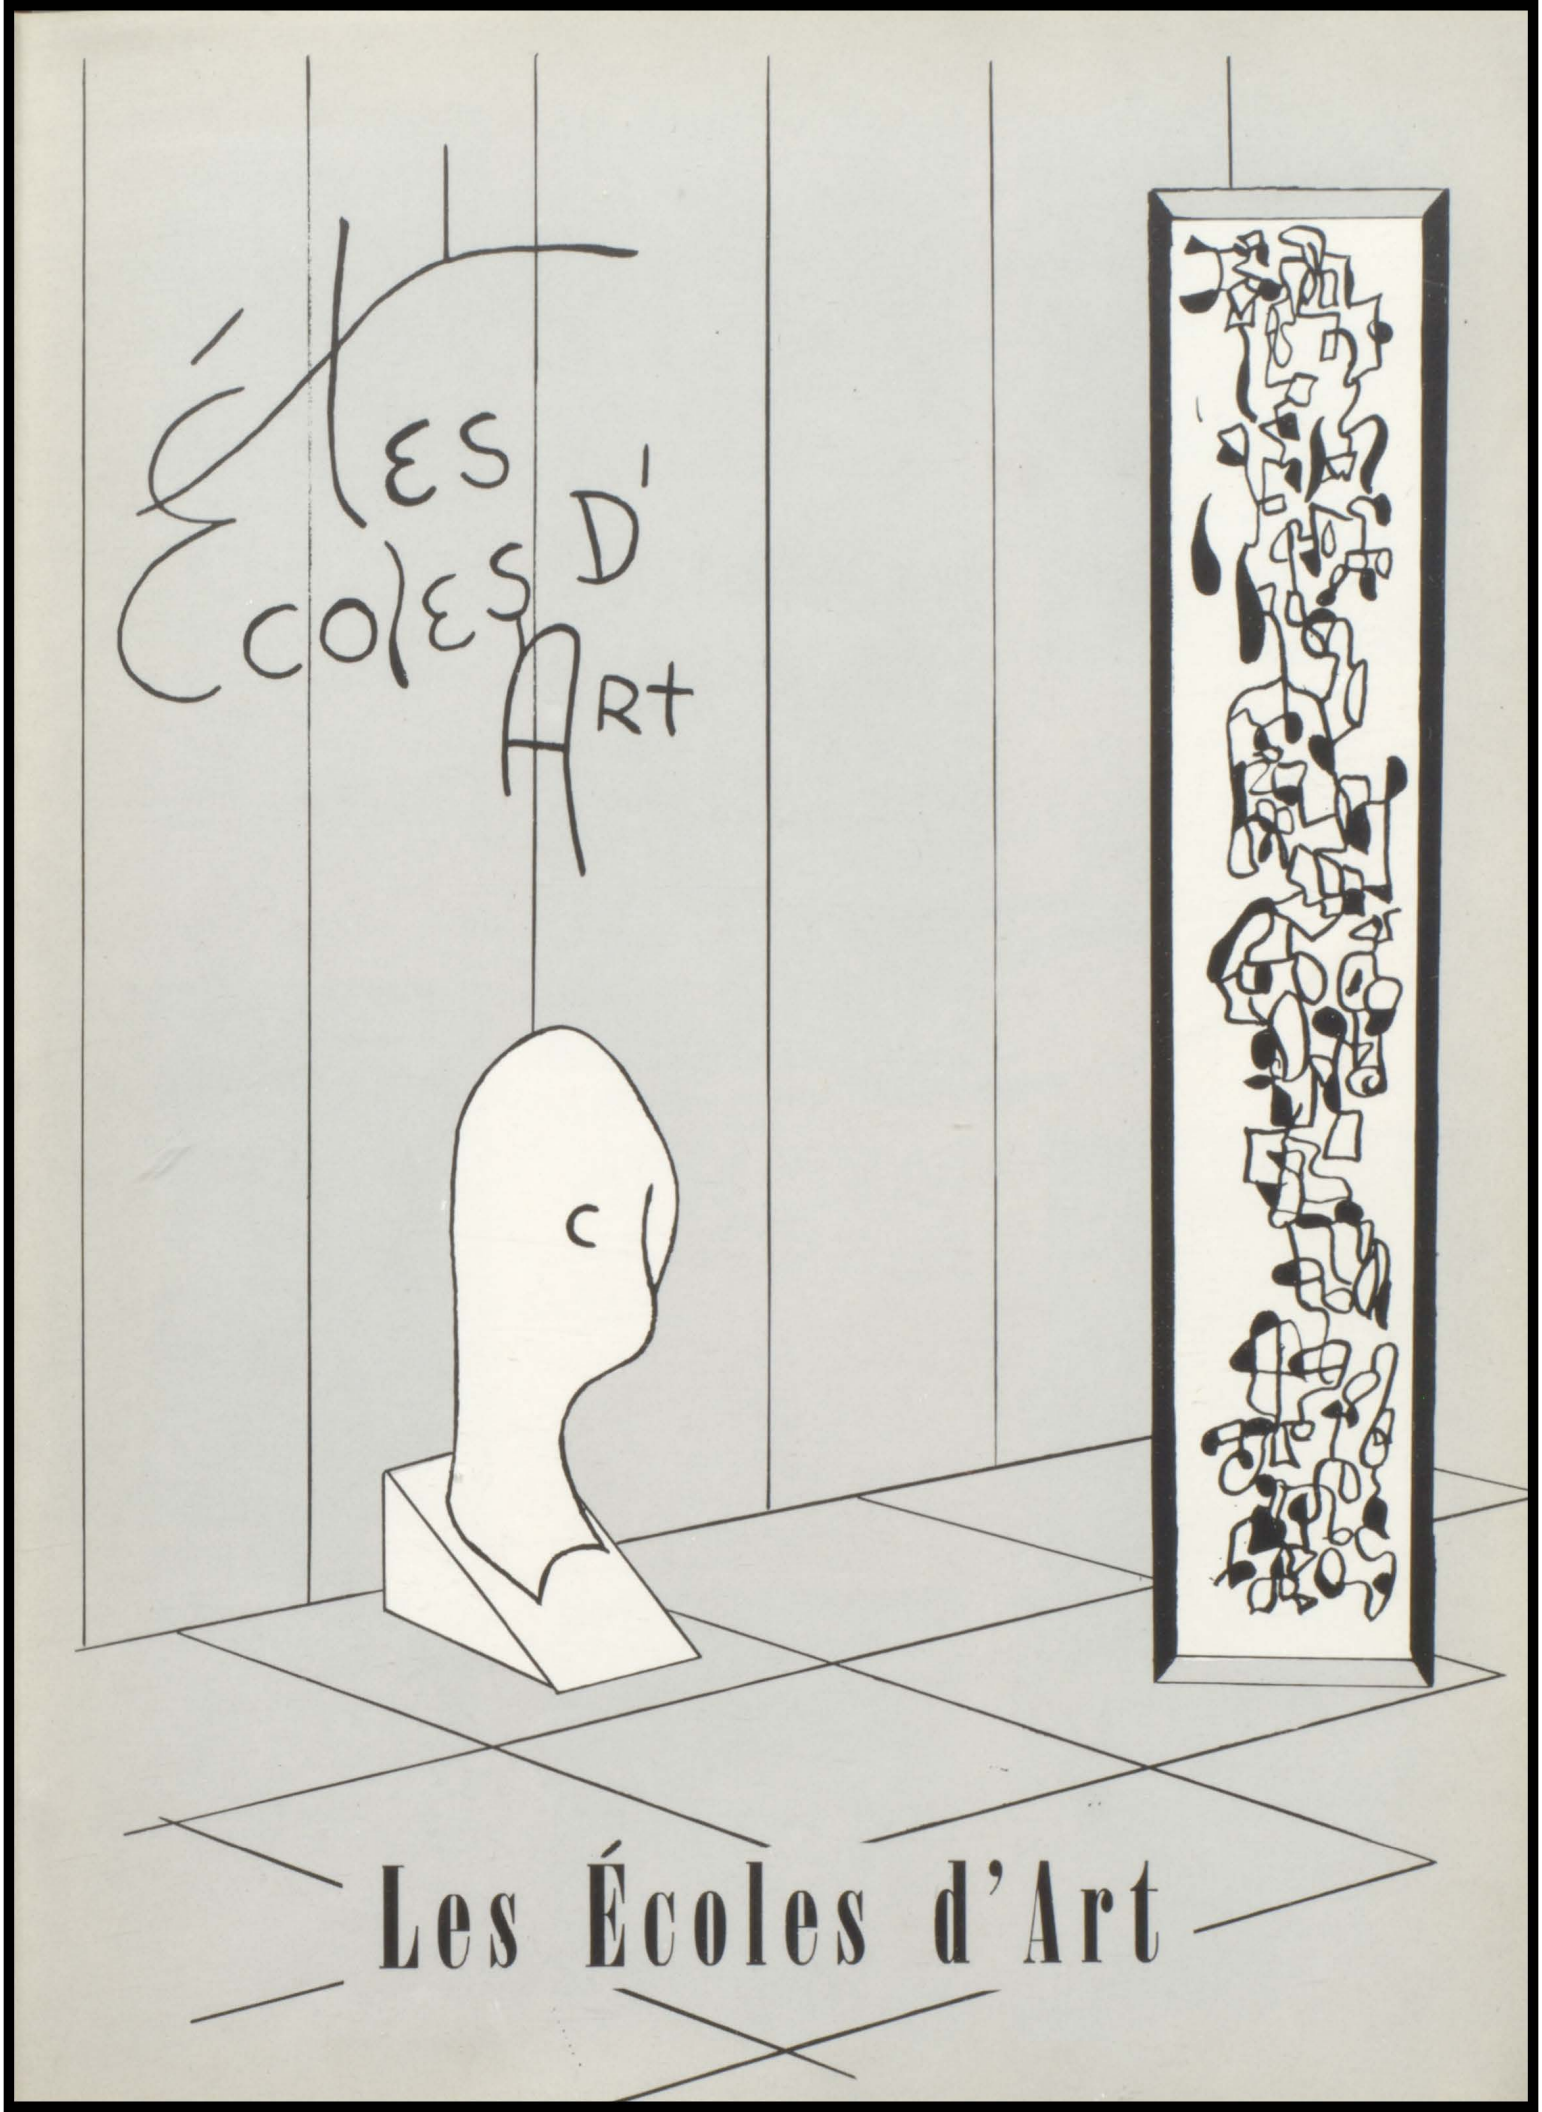

Months of preparation went into Bali Hai, the 4B Hop. He searched for "the" date, bought a new suit which he could barely don — so exhausted was he from decorating the gym that afternoon.

On Torch Day, it took one moment to receive the torch, and bid adieu to the departing 4A's. On the next Torch Day, it was one more moment and he himself was displaced.

Yes, poignant was the senior year. Even the prom's theme, Stardust Memories, was sweetly sad.

* * *

56 days to "G Day" . . . 35 days . . . 17 days . . . 3 days . . . "G Day." Thus, the blackboards had been gleefully and confidently decorated. But "G Day" was, and he was not gleeful, but tearful, not confident, but hesitant.

BESSIE O. BINGHAM

L'École de BINGHAM

After three years of shifting, changing, being homeroomless, and homeroom teacherless, 104 has finally become a decided, definite, and fused class with one permanent teacher, Mrs. Bingham, at its head. This class, unlike others in which students are silent and brooding over the early hour, is overflowing with enthusiasm.

Karen Epstein, the earlybird, arrives to be greeted by Mrs. Bingham who is busily correcting algebra and geometry papers. Joyce Lerner and Phyllis Wishner soon enter the room and quietly take their seats in the hope of doing some of last night's homework. However, their endeavors are interrupted by the various noises that seem to surround and suffocate them. For instance, Harlan Schackner has just entered and is having his usual "debate" with Mrs. Bingham. And Fran Elson, seeing the other New York Times agents hurrying by with their cumbersome loads, is suddenly gripped by pangs of jealousy. Returning paper-laden, she engages in a lengthy and futile attempt to sell the paper to Fred Goldsmith. Fred is too engrossed with the latest scandal in the Star Ledger. Claire Russell, Marianne Richard, Geraldine Szalkowski, and Barbara Bauser add to the mounting din with their world-shaking opinions on the weather, school, and, of course, boys.

Just as the large hand of the clock is about to move to the halfway mark and announce the start of school, Sandy Levine is a wind coming through the door. His running style is critically reviewed by Bobby Mack, quite the expert himself, to Stewart Eidelheit who is engrossed in his racing form.

Mrs. Bingham now begins her daily desperate attempt to bring the class to order by shouting above the hub-bub, "That, my friends, was the 8:30 bell! Let's go, people, we have lots to do and if we can't get it done during homeroom period we'll do it at 2:35!" The threat hanging low, all subside. Daisy Lane reads the notices which are tensely awaited by Betty Allen for basketball team announcements. Milton Salz is taking the attendance while Mrs. Bingham checks absence notes. Finding Richard Burke's note missing, she reprimands him, and this is an unspoken cue for Bob Berkowitz and Dave Crystal to begin laughing, joking, talking. A chain reaction occurs and Lillian Friedman, Lainie Kossoy, Diane Wasserman, Paula Greenberg and Sondra Lipson discuss the attributes of their respective boyfriends.

Reluctantly, Sharon Mandel and Marylin Stern collaborate on their accounting homework. Helen Kraemer, practicing extracurricular five fundamental ballet positions in the back of the room, is observed by Joseph Seiler. Close by, Madelyn Newlight is applying her make-up under the watchful eyes of Linda Barsher and Carole Kollinger. Hypnotized, they are almost induced by her to subscribe to the Calumet.

It seems not a minute has passed, but the passing bell rings and Mrs. Bingham's own leave for the day — secure in the knowledge that tomorrow they will return.

RUTH K. BLUM

L'École de BLUM

As the sun makes its first appearance, and the milkman finishes his daily rounds, Myrna King enters the still silent chamber popularly known as homeroom 105 — formerly 102, formerly 103, formerly 105. Bob Smorodin and Marv Rozansky, our track stars, who can never quite beat our earlybird, enter; but, the homeroom does not assume its customary scholarly atmosphere until the math crowd — Janice Copen, Allan Krauter, Ruth Litzky, and Ronald Telesnick begin the daily debate on last night's calculus homework. If things get too bad, the mathmen refer the query to Mrs. Blum, who, for hours, has been attempting to find the missing word from yesterday's Herald Tribune crossword puzzle. Adding to the math confusion is Allen Lox's incantation of the square root tables.

However, all is not intellectual in 105. When Marty Wasserman, singing the latest tune, and Nat Wolf, making his attempt, arrive, there is promise of the bedlam to come. Sue Pressman floats in combing her hair. Jerry Field, Ed Barker, and Mike Klein can be heard analyzing the sport-in-season; and, Laurie Alterman, with her usual pep and vigor, practices a cheer for the sport-of-the-day. By this time, the 8:30 bell has rung, and Carol Ackerman, almost tardy, slips into her seat.

The solemn ritual begins — Bible reading (interrupted by the P. A.), the Lord's Prayer, the flag salute, distribution of overdue library notices to Les Belf and Sharon Farbman, and Joe Forster's familiar "I didn't say one word, Mrs. Blum —," to the habitual, "Who gave you permission to speak?"

While six-term attendance secretary, Naomi Flecker, takes the roll, Arthur Zucker, our answer to Mad magazine, solicits subscriptions for the Calumet. Sheila Cooper's and Steve Goodman's conversation is interrupted when a request is made by Mrs. B for their forgotten absence notes. Charlie Eisenberger (or is it Jerry?) and Jay Kaplan gently taunt our future office star, Pat Handschuh, who is diligently pouring lines and curves onto her steno pad.

Marcia Kaplan's efforts at collecting for one fund or another are obstructed when Barbara Rous shreiks, "Pay your class dues today; the price goes up tomorrow." Sweater-boy Allan Solomon excitedly protests to both girls that he is absolutely broke. Mrs. Blum can only thank her lucky stars for the quiet catalysts — Barry Schreiber, Robert Teitlebaum, and Marty Ziegler.

An audible sigh at the 8:40 signal marks the beginning of a new day. Pushing feet scramble in a frenzy to begin with the day.

FLORENCE MISURELL

L'École de MISURELL

Hi! Let me introduce myself. I'm the door of 114. I've been watching this homeroom for the past few terms and I've seen some mighty strange things. I've had one experience that will really interest you . . . but wait, here comes the 8:25 stampede.

* * *

Linda Zive is in the lead lugging the class' New York Times. One by one, the charmers file into the classroom, each giving me a good hard slam. Ah, everyone is finally inside and I can rest for a while. No, I'm wrong, someone is missing. Who? Oh, here she comes. It's Fran Klausner, barely meeting the bell as usual.

Now they're all assembled and homeroom period has officially commenced, or at least it should have. Ina Wasserman determinedly paces the floor as she memorizes her French to the tunes of Gershwin and Scocozza's Porgy and Bess that David Screven is humming. Lois Zamelsky is frantically running from desk to desk trying to find someone who has done the history homework, when she collides with lovely and strolling Linda Krugman. This causes a minor accident, but in the tumult, nobody pays attention. Farrell Fand, the poet of the class, is spellbinding Alvin Blake and Mike Brown with his unique verses when Mrs. Misurell snaps the spell with the banging of her ruler and the order "to assume your respective positions." Edy Schultz has anticipated the order and is in place at the front of the room ready to read "her" Psalm 100. (She rehearsed for this role in You Can't Take It With You.)

The silence was too nice. I'll be thankful for small blessings. Turmoil reigns. To have a vantage view of beauty culture instruction, Nancy Weisburd and Suzanne Wohlfeiler have perched on the ventilator. This beauty parlor opens early to a small clientele and a large audience. Linda Cohen gives expert advice on eyebrow pencil application while Ellen Bauman creates unusual hairstyles for everyone. One hundred times Ellen has told Myra Kaul to cut her hair. But, who listens?

Pretty faced and haired Ann Lippy is having her special problem — a heated discussion with Larry Shain, which stops only momentarily when Bonnie Holtz interrupts them with a friendly and elongated "gooood moooorning." The shocking sound awakens George Rubin and Jimmy Marenus who think it might be time to read the notices — but not until Jimmy finishes his Hershey bar. Notices are read. Jill Edison, having been lost in a Lafayette week-end reverie to which she admitted Iris Bressman, requests the reading of the notices.

Now comes the usual and frequent plea for more money. Molly Raff is feverishly trying to collect for the Calumet, and Judy Freedman, using the subtle approach, knits as she offhandedly asks who wants to buy a basketball ticket. Phyllis Manders is racking her brain to find a way to convince Marv Goldin (racked also) to pay his class dues. During this fruitless foray into the possibilities of extracting money from empty pockets, Elise Dembitzer whispers to Rita Applebaum in a modulated tone that almost shatters my window. While I quiver, Irene Cantor, Adrienne Laub, and Rona Gordet complain that Elise's whisper is the last stone. They will petition for a longer and quieter homeroom period for homework.

Oh, there's that bell! Again, I'm being slammed around. And that's only one reason I'll miss the kids come September.

* * *

. . . Maybe there's no special experience to tell. I've just told all.

ERNEST GOBEILLE

L'École de GOBEILLE

Bracing himself for the oncoming riot,
The dauntless Gobeille breathes the room's peaceful quiet.
He suddenly starts and lets out a roar —
Mike Gottlieb has just parked his car at the door!
A flash of a bulb shows us Chausmer is near,
And Lutzke's reporting the scene, never fear.
Eye-witness Jim Ivers, exhibiting charm,
Now enters the class with a girl on each arm.
He is followed by Goldstein, flown in from Brazil,
Describing his plane to dancer Joyce Krill.
Now the athletes appear — Dave, Al, and Oleh,
And congratulate Mintz on his great double play.
Marsha Winarsky's gay twenties hair style
Is skillfully painted by "Grandma" Max Weill.
The portrait is praised by Marvin and Ron,
Who are soon joined by Earl with his fancy tie on.
Herb Segal now captures the homeroom's attention,
Lecturing on history worthy of mention.
But he is permitted not long to preside —
Our great swimmer Howie comes in with the tide.
He is greeted by Milstein, selling Times and Tribune
And hears Brotspies announce, "Calumet money soon,"
All greet the Moskowitzes, friends Jack and Paul,
Escorted by Sam, hero of the football.
Linda Savin's new dress is admired as regal
By handsome and dashing "Dr." Seigel.
Susie, Eddie, and Bobbie converse happily
As Ricky solves problems in math expertly.
And Sue Klein with books and violin in hand
Joins Penny discussing her new baby grand.
The students are hushed by the warning bell's din
As Smelson and Testa come scurrying in.
This is the story of Room 118
And Ernie Gobeille, best we have seen!

HARRIET SHAPIRO

L'École de SHAPIRO

The bright-eyed, eager students who met for the first time in September 1955 are no more. In their places are the serious, intelligent students of Room 216.

As the swinging doors are pushed aside, the solemn chanting of Margie Jones and Florence Pecora can be heard harmonizing to that new refrain "Tall Paul." Diana Balsamo and Judy Alpert take advantage of this opportunity to cut a small rug Philadelphia style. For some strange reason, Edward Iwanski doesn't find the cut carpet exceptionally entertaining and is debating whether to get up a lynching party or kill himself and end it all. Fredi Greenfield doesn't care one way or the other about the duet; she is too busy recapping the last basketball game for Phyllis Lentz.

Close by, Fern Marion listens attentively to Judy Tiber's lecture on the trials and tribulations of the modern driver. Constant distractions come to Fern from the front of the room where Rhoda Glucksman and Elaine Tomas practice singing sequentials sideways.

Our Big Chief Martin Mersky sits in the far corner discussing grave matters of state with Melvin Braverman. They ask Shirley Kassel and Susan Gold for opinions on whether or not teachers should be allowed to park near the school.

Scribe Gail Condito can be heard beating the war drums. It seems Marie Meola was not in the proper teepee while attendance was being taken and Gail marked her absent. Iréne Kszak is also on the war path, for, no matter how much she influences, she can't convince Estelle Lizerman and Vivian Ellis to buy the New York Times.

The oh's and ah's that come from Martha Mason are exclamations of delight and approval for the beautiful engagement rings worn by Patricia McGall and Alice Greenstein.

"Don't move," shouts Marilyn Muller to Joan Votapek. It is very important that Joan remain perfectly still as Arlene Matthews stares at her in an attempt to pick the best hairdo for her. Already combed, Diane Redwood and Carole Rieman sit calmly in their seats and swap notes on how they caught their boyfriends and what they expect to do with them now that they have them.

At eight twenty-nine and one half, Lois "the actress" Kravitz bursts into the room with her latest joke. Sheila Levine is prepared to play straightman, but Rozalyn Carfin unthinkingly breaks poor Lois' heart by blurting out the punch line.

(Our pleasures together have been intensified by sadness we have known: the death of our classmate Christine Yarosh.)

The passing bell rings for us to pass, for Miss Shapiro to lock the door, and for us to stumble through our first period classes.

SOPHIA N. DEUTSCH

L'École de DEUTSCH

A mother loves her children, stands by them when something goes wrong, advises them, and encourages them when they meet with failure. How true this is of our own Mama Deutsch who tries her best to make Homeroom 229 a second home to all of us.

Each morning the homeroom is filled with bustling excitement. With seconds to spare, Dave Mantell flashes across the threshold to his seat, sits, and immediately begins doing his trig homework. Sandy Baer, already rather spent from his morning pool laps, becomes completely exhausted from trying to quiet the mob: "Please, we have a lot of business to discuss." Not obeying Bob Gold calls for New York Times money, Alan Schreiber asks for Calumet subscribers, and Mrs. Deutsch passes an envelope around for donations to the Polio Fund. Sofia Dubowska hopes that maybe somebody will have a remaining few cents for banking.

Jackie Bab and Gail Kottler are always so anxious to come to school that they don't have time to put on their cosmetics at home, so have made a practice of using the homeroom as their powder room. John Patch interestedly observes the changes. Richie Wildstein, also watching the two girls, forgets about his chemistry test. A few minutes later, remembering, he asks Arthur Winard for a simple explanation which becomes a fifteen minute lecture.

Sandy reads the notices. "Contemporary Club meets today in the library." A gasp of horror is heard from Arthur Hodes. "Oh! My gosh, I forgot and I don't have a thing prepared for the meeting."

"Basketball game Friday. Ask your homeroom representative to get tickets." Jerry Kaufman immediately stops doing his homework and gets busy taking names.

Remembering we won the last game, everyone joins in a flat rendition of For He's A Jolly Good Fellow directed at the class' own Harvey Glassman.

Berthe Weissman is delighted when there is an extra New York Times, "I'll know some current events for Mrs. Twardus." Mrs. Twardus! At the sound of her name, Robert Ginsberg realizes he didn't do the history homework and politely yells, "Will someone be a doll and come across with the notes?"

Lori Hollander reminds us that our classmate Lenny Wolkstein is still in the hospital. How we miss him! Wouldn't it be nice if we bought him a little present? "How about a tree in Israel?" asks Seymour Wishman. "No, I think a Bible would be more suitable," suggests Richie Stamelman. "Then he would have something to read if he gets bored." Mrs. Deutsch interposes Lenny might prefer a shirt. Sheldon Gottlieb is chosen to do the purchasing because: (1) he has excellent taste in clothes, and, (2) he can get it wholesale.

Ellen Palent has Frances Plotkin listening intently to details of the last weekend, when Connie Hill asks for a few moments of silence so she can report Class Council news. Louise Butler, Susan Lippman, Sylvian Daye and Ken Rimer, too involved in the homework they forgot to do the night before, do not notice the sudden cessation of homeroom commotion.

Stuart Rudin, after spending quite a while on one trig problem, realizes it would be easier to copy it from someone, and sends out a distress signal. Bob Lang, who has never taken trig, runs to his aid. Expert as Bob, Matty Naula and Elliot Urdang claim they not only type, but that electric typewriters make typing easy for any dope. With permission to use the typewriters, the two boys endeavor to prove their point. They can't type.

No one except Mrs. Deutsch could stand the ruckus we raise during these too short, ten minute homeroom periods. As the 8:40 bell rings and everyone is gathering his books, the words we have grown to expect and to love are heard, "Put your chairs under your desks and have a good day."

MILDRED YELLIN

L'École de YELLIN

With the sound of the bell at 8:25,
Staggering seniors begin to arrive,
Cluster together in the hall,
'Til forced to disperse by Melnik's call.
The door is unlocked, and with grimacing faces,
Bleary-eyed students soon take their places.
In our seats Dodis wants us to stay:
Attendance can be taken in an orderly way.
Mrs. Yellin tries fervently to make herself heard,
But Leventer and Hirschberg ignore every word.
Pilchman and Stifelman about homework are worrying,
And almost late always, Silverstein comes scurrying.
Our chairman, Silberman, attempts to quell the riot,
For Barton, Koonce, and Kornspan are the only ones quiet.
Now Tucker conducts the opening prayer,
Then Sacher, for history, reads a speech by the mayor.
Kimelman tells of the Class Council meeting,
Reminds us that Weequahic days are hastily fleeting.

Telechowicz, Goldman, and Chinman discuss future plans,
While sports stars Sheps and Tannenbaum boast of their fans.
Feldman and Gordon study chem each day,
But Rosenberg manages to get in their way.
Russell is collecting money for the Calumet.
(He says it's the best issue that we've had yet.)
Littman's thoughts on history are wrong to Wright,
But she believes it's better to listen than to fight.
Gittes is mocking Bergman's tight skirt.
Hoffman is defeated in efforts to flirt.
Meyers distributes the New York Times each day,
But has difficulty in getting Leibowitz to pay.
Goff and Weinstein let everyone know
That each has an Al to claim as her beau.
Last, but not least, our room's boast to fame,
4A class president, Green, is our claim.
Soon the bell rings — to class we must go
And leave Mrs. Yellin preparing CuO.

ALICE SALTMAN

L'École de SALTMAN

The bell has rung. In every other 4A homeroom all scramble to their assigned seats — but not in 307. There are no assigned seats, for the reason that these are movable visual aids chairs, which have been, to say the least, moved. Riva Rock must take attendance by means of a complex numerical system in which each person shouts out his own number. Invariably Maxine Levine forgets hers. Chairman and referee Alan Morris patiently tries to establish some semblance of order while the Pik 'n' Pay boys, Howard Alboum, Ira Brotspies, and David Moskowitz, aim to convince the class of the superiority of their corporation over the protests of Shop-Rite's left hand man, Jerry Yorn; Barry Zidel tries to keep Mrs. Saltman from clobbering him; and Debby Rosenthal, Natalie Krasner, and Ronnie Kuperman demonstrate their cheering and twirling routines to Arlyne Krueger. When Doris Karstadt and Roberta Cook at last succumb to the exhortations of Mel Gotthoffer for silence or else, Sherman "Billy Graham" Mark steps up to the front of the room, Bible in hand, only to find himself opposed by tycoon-in-training David Maltz who is boasting of his most recent accumulation of capital to Mike Gerber, Weequahic's answer to Charles Atlas.

Opening exercises over, everyone in the homeroom is ready for business — everyone, that is, except Neil Rothstein and Sid Friedenberg who are too exhausted from early morning swimming practice. Dimpled Calumet Agent Judy Greenblatt and New York Times man Larry Nurin try vainly to sell their products to the Bobbsey Twins, Richard Patrico and John Puglisi. After a hot game of pick-up sticks with Joyce Killen and Gwen Hamilton, Paul Cohen attempts to collect class dues for the second time from Eilene Lehrer and Aurelia Romero, who refuse to be swindled.

Homeroom period is almost over but Larry Leifer still can't finish his chem lab because Gilda Koltenuk and Dahlia Krouk have upset his theory by insisting that water will absolutely not burn.

As the passing bell rings, Diane Hammer is about to be finished dressing her hair.

MARION SOWERS

L'École de SOWERS

As the early morning sun streams brightly through the windows, many charming sights greet the early visitor to Homeroom 316 — a verdant window ledge, a human brain soaking in formaldehyde, and a neighborly stuffed owl. Reigning over this splendor is diligent doorman, Harvey Dondershine, with ready grin welcoming the first habitue of our biological haven.

The first order of business is a desperate discussion about last night's English homework among Harriet Goldenberg, Enith Kaplan, Larry Weitzner, and Jerry Eisenberger. (Or was it Charlie?) But the business-like atmosphere is disturbed, for Vanessa Snapinn and Marsha Masoff impatiently await their turns to brush their tresses in the glass windows of the animal showcases, which are being monopolized by Juliet Blum. Beverly Raman joins the cosmetic seizure. Sandy Russell's conversation with Lillie Ellis is arrested by the tolling of the bell, which also announces Linda Parent's split-second arrival and Mrs. Sowers' detention threat. Judy Cohan slipped into the room enough seconds before Linda to review the weekend's social events, but not to comandeer an audience.

Our faithful secretary, Hilary Steinberg, attempts to take attendance and read the notices. The leader of our happy little family, Gilbert Wilson, had made feeble attempts at various announcements, but, defeated, retired to his Chem labs. The battle of the billfold and its many exponents are more successful. Roger Greenberg pleads for financial support of our New York Times subscription; Anne Osborne expounds the merits of the Calumet; and Jeffrey Dolgan subtly holds an O.B.A. card aloft. Barbara Metzger's soliciting is the easiest: she is the ticket agent arbiter who decides who attends what event.

These interruptions make impossible the pursuit of study for Muriel Goldman, Libby Schnitzer, Carol Kalnitzky, and Arnold Rubin. Our physicist of the future, Jason Birnholz, maintains his private and scientific oblivion, while David Swimmer is in an oral Economics reverie. 316's athletic triumvirate — Danny Enzer, Gerry Greenspan, and Steve Berkowitz — discuss (what else?) the stategy of the basketball court. Howard Lehman's extracurricular interests may not be quite so sporting, but his jewelry products from Junior Achievement are really "gems." With precise timing for his dissertation on the motion picture industry, Martin Gross obliterates Howie's sales pitch. (Martin was once an usher at the Park theater.) A normal day in 316 would not be normal without an encounter between two of the friendliest enemies ever seen — Lenny Gelfand and Danny Levy. The insults fly, but this, too, this meeting, comes to an end. There is a lull, a moment of expectancy. The hands move, and having moved, another day officially begins.

JENNIE TWARDUS

L'École de TWARDUS

As each new morning brightly dawns, the eager students in the School of Twardus are confronted with the unhappy prospect of climbing to the third floor. However, the routine of the years has dulled the ache of strained muscles striving onward to room 321.

Regardless of the hour we enter her domain, we are certain to find Mrs. Twardus seated at her desk assiduously correcting the test covering this week's edition of the American Observer. As the warning bell begins its call, the classroom slowly fills. Steve Warner, having divested himself of his female coterie, tears in from the corridor and succeeds in seating himself before the tardy bell. Marcia Rubinfield and Shirley Halberstadter are discussing the affairs of their hearts with Barbara Abramowitz, already pinned and quite expert on the subject, but break up their talky klotch as Mrs. Twardus begins assigning detention. Mark Steinberg saunters in simultaneously with the bell and slumps comfortably in his seat for the homeroom nap.

The tardy bell rings, and a hushed silence reigns, but the morning preliminaries are temporarily delayed for Joel Litman to finish the last question of last night's homework assignments. Chairman Marcia Silodor solemnly reads the Bible while Lynn Garodnick nervously awaits her daily leadership-in-training rite, the conducting of the flag salute. Then a sudden state of paralysis grips the room as Harriet Diamond threatens absence marks to anyone who leaves his seat before she takes attendance.

Warren Downey, the representative of the press who is continuously forcing culture upon us, pleads once more for money for the New York Times. Our sports enthusiast, Stuart Friedman, makes a valiant effort to collect for basketball tickets, while Linda Levine offers stiff competition collecting for O.B.A. cards. Oh, here comes Joan Klass appealing to the literary senses of her classmates by offering subscriptions to the Calumet and Ergo. Our empty pockets sigh: Is there no end in sight?

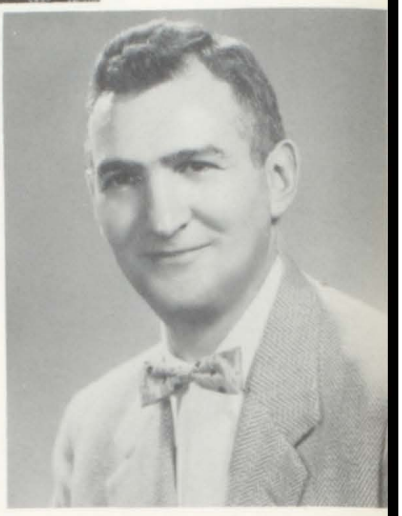

Judy Cohen now occupies the spotlight and attempts to give her weekly Council report, but is constantly distracted by Jerry Kassel's whistling and heckling. Oblivious Audrey Morrison, busily devouring a chocolate-covered cupcake breakfast, engages in a spirited conversation with Isabel Manzella and Chester Cohen. Comparatively new to our happy clan are Helen Resnick and Elaine Sakoff, who quickly conformed by adding their own private tête-à-tête to the din. Lenny Gibbons attempts to read his sports page, but his patience is tried by the noisy battle over the exchange of history homework between Mary Boyko and Harry Goldwater.

Gigi Herman's discourse about the preceding weekend's activities to attentive Dodie Rubinstein is interrupted by industrious Mrs. Twardus' calling, "Gayle Herman, library slip!" Poor Mrs. T., the deluge has begun. Larry Rubin is contesting whether this or any other homeroom can interfere with history marks. Billy Waldorf is a primary contender for attention as he insists on the insertion of his "J."

Alan Kurtz and Barbara Segal attempt to correct those confounded rejected labs by a little collusion on the subject. Rita Bleckner is also confronted with chemistry — the memorization of bothersome equations. Carole Haskin, in private glee club rehearsal, offers soothing mood music to still the clamor. Her efforts are of no avail, but they do help Pat Velardo continue dreaming of Margie.

The ten minutes of delightful confusion are quickly at an end, but not as quickly will we forget the sweet and bitter memories they hold for us.

SHELTON WEIL

L'École de WEIL

As Mary Piacente enters the yet peaceful homeroom with her cheery, "Good morning, everyone," she receives contemptuous glances from Professors Sid Bashover and Ed Karlik who are endeavoring to correct their rejected chem labs. Simultaneously, the diplomatic corps — Rubin, Samolsky, Schiffman, Schwartzman, Sornstein, and Weinstein is heard discussing the problems of the world as if they alone could solve them. While professors ponder and diplomats debate, the class's sole football player, Harvey Morantz, strolls and hinders the distribution of the morning paper by Ed Masarsky. To give musical solace to the thinkers, Lois Weiss is singing the show stopper, Oklahoma. Her unappreciative companion, Audrey Schulman, ignores the melody and queries, "Is there a history test seventh?"

The class "steadies" are together. Ellen Meyerstein can be found at once doing her steno and listening to her beau, Alan Zagerman, who is recounting the events of last night's basketball game. And Margie Steinke (just returned from the "powder room" with Sheila Gerber who now grumbles about last night's chem assignment with Herb Levitt) joins Dan Cholish to discuss their plans for Saturday. Hair-brush in hand, Sheila Ginsberg ("Inch" to her friends) stands at the door and converses with Mike Sobo. They greet Bernie Greenwald and Herb Litwin who are deeply engrossed in a heated conversation on their favorite topic — girls.

The clock strikes 8:21 and into the beloved arena strides 331's beloved Mr. Weil, laden with math materials. Bob Gabriner and Dotty Crawford greet him with a plea for aid in securing the class's attention so that they read important notices concerning Legend. In the midst of all this confusion, Carole Solomon's voice chatters last minute gossip to her departing friends from 216. In contrast, Gail Lissek quietly begins her perusal of the New York Times undisturbed by the sports hassle of trackmen Jon Kohler and Brian Donnelly. Richard Bigelow, a new member of the class, insists in pursuing Mr. Weil to make certain that his class dues have been balanced. Throughout the chaos, Ira Wolfe, class chairman, has been preparing to read the notices, but, knowing he cannot yet begin, he keeps an eye on the door for Frank Howard, who, two seconds before the bell, staggers (books in one hand, instrument cases in the other) into the room. Mr. Weil calls the class to order. Homeroom ceremonies begin.

TO MEMBERS OF THE FACULTY:

1. In order to provide enough parking space for the students, teachers are asked to park two blocks from the school.

2. ATTENTION: This is Be-Kind-to-Seniors-Week. All faculty members and students are asked to cooperate by giving due respect to the seniors.

3. All students will meet in the auditorium during periods 5 to 8. Teachers will be excused at the end of period 4. J. C. B.

4. Teachers' Safe Driving Club will meet in room 6 at 2:35 today.

5. There will be gum chewing at Torch Day rehearsals.

PLEASE ANNOUNCE:

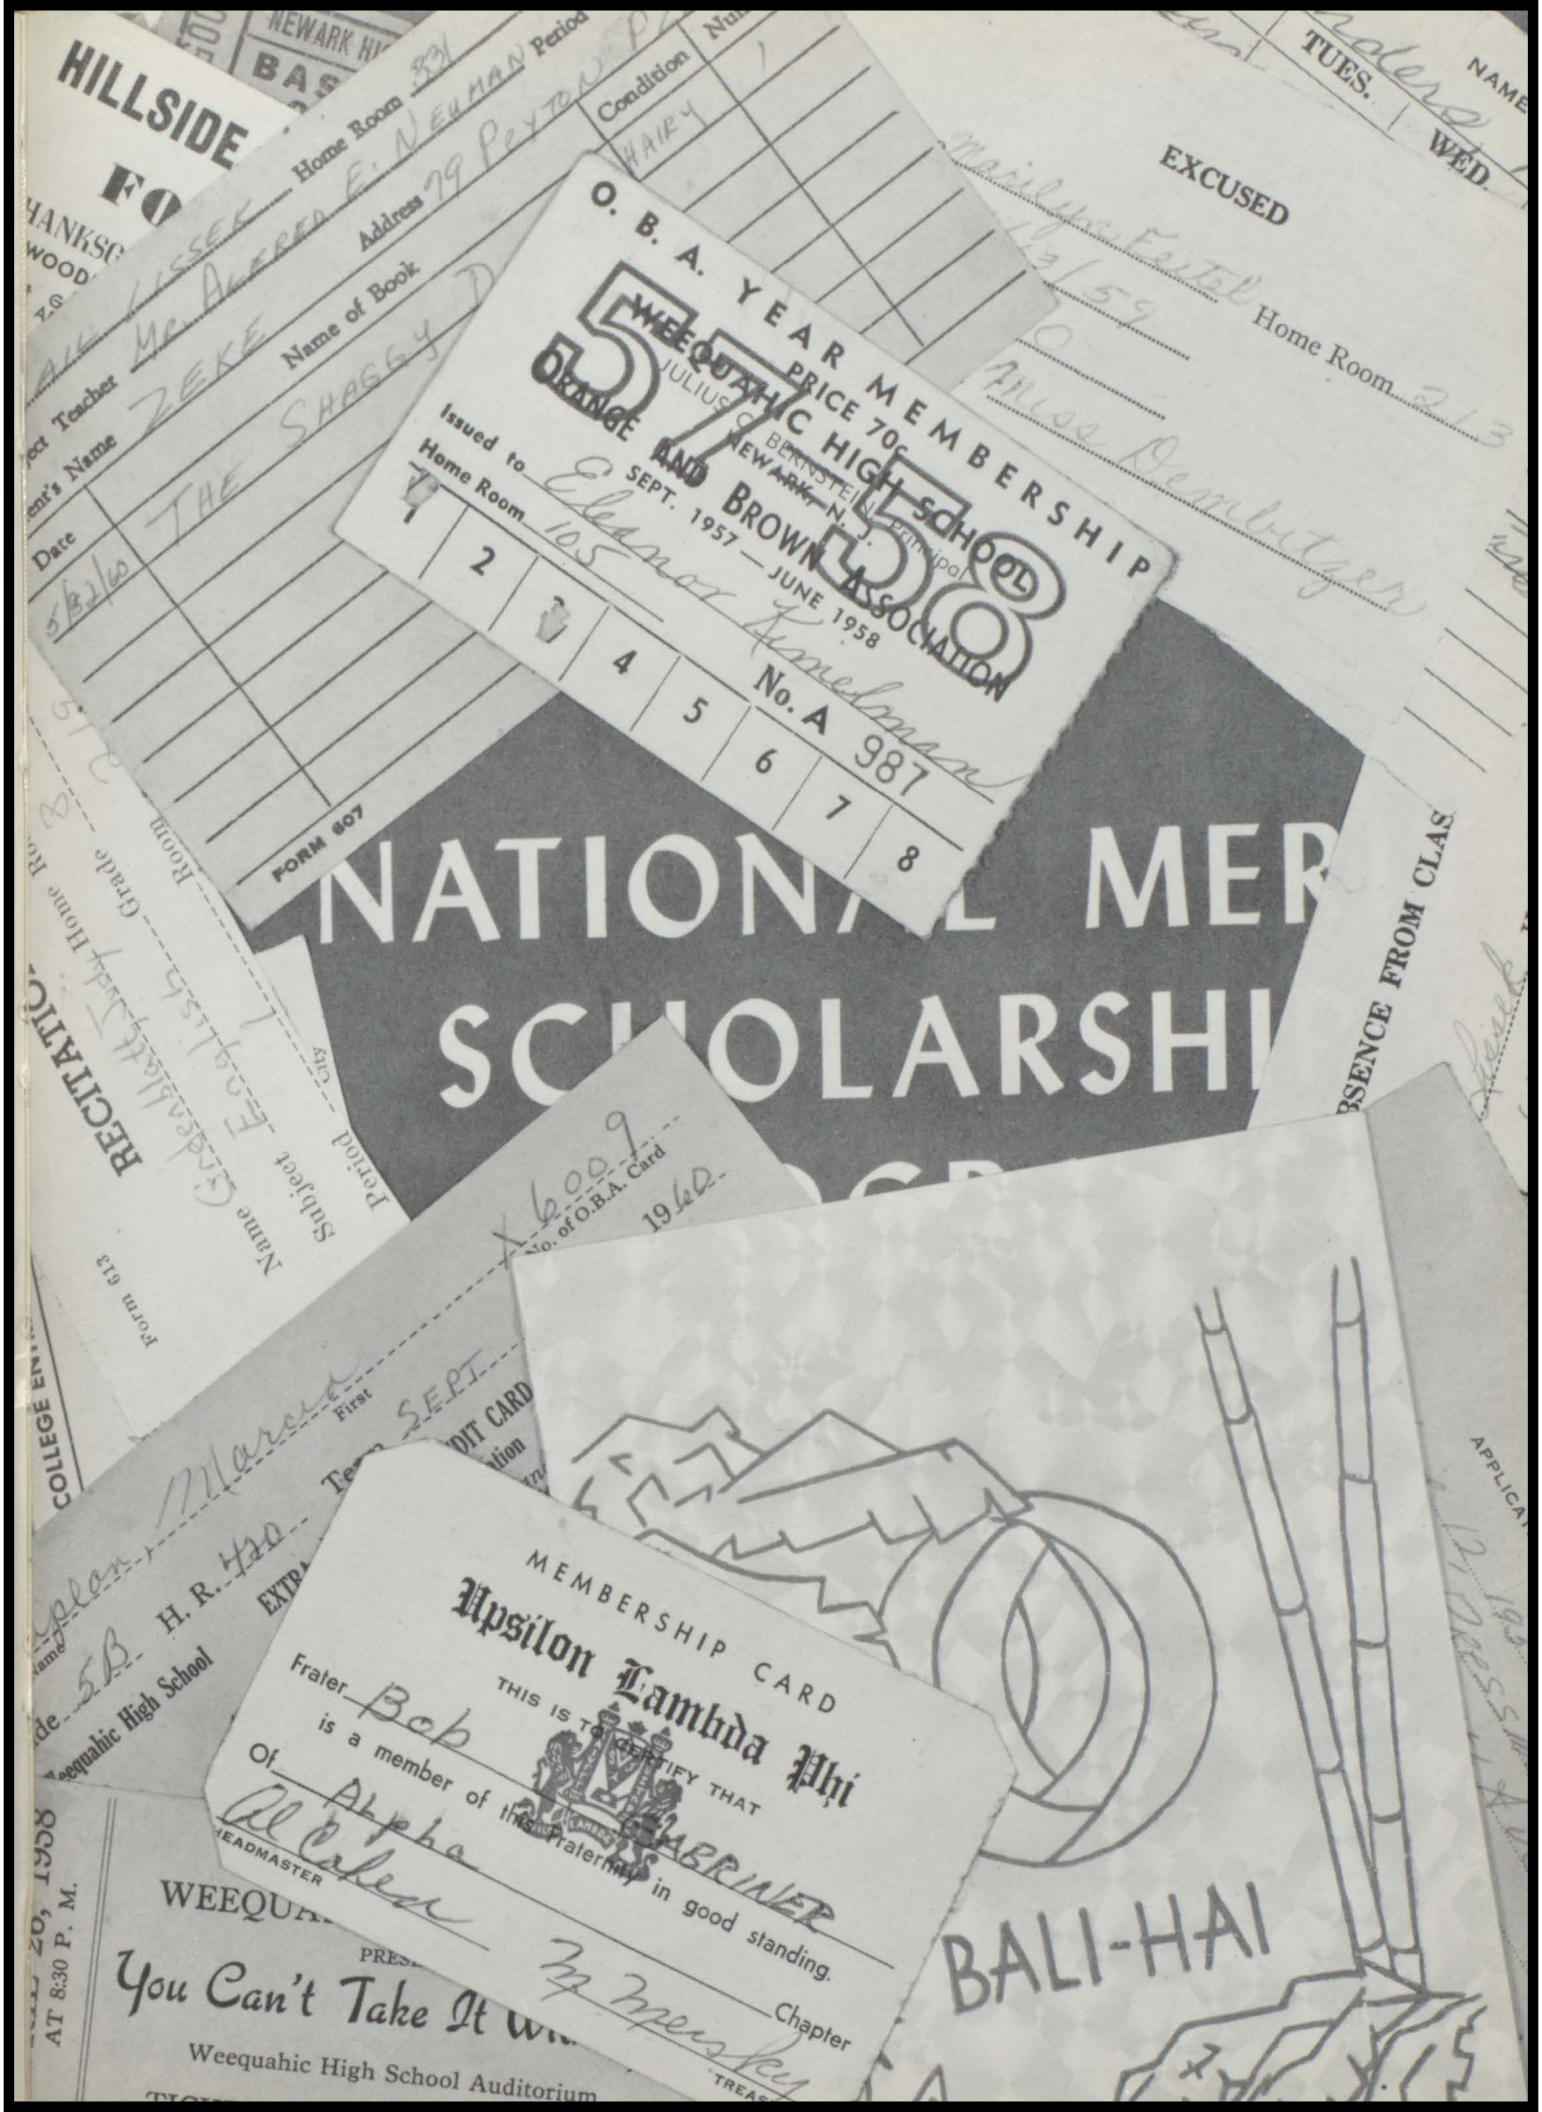

1. As suggested by the Health Department, students are invited to picnic on the lawn as soon as the weather improves.

2. The following books have been added to our expanding library:
   Memoirs of the Second World War.....R. J. Bruder
   The American Observer Collection.....Jennie Twardus

3. There will be an O.B.A. dance Friday night, April 13, from 8 P.M. to 11 P.M. in the girls' gym. The following rules will be observed:
   A. Tickets will be sold at the door. O.B.A. cards are invalid.
   B. All entrances to the school may be used.
   C. Boys will be expected to wear appropriate attire — black dungarees and T-shirts.

4. Sophomores and Juniors: Within the next few weeks, you will be called for a conference with your guidance counselor who will ask you to select your teachers for next term. Lists of teachers open to your grade have been posted in homerooms. Look these over carefully and discuss your choices with your friends.

5. Senior Girls: Tryouts for the football team will be held in Untermann Field at 2:35 today under the supervision of Miss Judson.

Finishing Touches

The maîtres and artistes have devoted many days, months, and years of diligent, strenuous, and loving work to us, les objets d'art. We feel that the time has come for us, in some measure, to return the favors.

To —	We Leave —
MRS. HIRSCH	A new class to guide, chide, and encourage.
MRS. BLUM	A compilation of the Herald Tribune crossword puzzles from 1955 to 1959.
MRS. YELLIN	A year's supply of chem lab deodorizer.
MISS SHAPIRO	A contract to teach cha-cha lessons at Arthur Murray's.
MR. WEIL	A class that "notes" the extremities of a degenerated form of an isosceles triangle.
MRS. SOWERS	A homeroom that opens its pocketbook instead of its mouth.
MRS. MISURELL	A reserved parking space in front of the school.
MRS. BINGHAM	A class that doesn't "goof" Torch Day.
MRS. SALTMAN	An art room that's hers, all hers, and no one else's but hers.
MRS. TWARDUS	A pre-packaged calendar of programs for future Contemporary Club meetings.
MRS. DEUTSCH	Class finance books that balance in advance of her efforts.
MR. BERNSTEIN	A senior class that wears its holiday clothes to school.
MISS FEITEL	A Legend staff sans a single tale-teller, gossip-monger.
MR. MARTINO	A chemistry class void of 4A's.
MR. BRUDER	A class that's "old enough to understand."
MRS. LAPPE	History classes extended to an hour and a half.
MISS BOWERMAN	A univac machine for automatic scheduling.
MR. GOLDBERG	A portable PA system to broadcast the news as it occurs.
MR. LA PENNA	Someone who will get into Dogpatch University.
FUTURE OBJETS D'ART	Nothing, because they will have for their own all that we know — varied, numerous senior complexes, and important, remembered pleasures — and this is the best that we know.
US	Everything, because all we know — varied learning and social experiences, and remunerative faculty-student relationships — is the best we have known, until now.

The baseball team and Coach "Spike" Schwartz anticipated a good '59 season. This year the team had five senior players which meant much.

The most experienced of these seniors was Mike Klein, who twice won All-City honors at first base. Mike merits praise for his pitching as well as his fielding and hitting abilities.

Mike Mintz, the team's All-City shortstop who batted "400" last season, was always a terror for opposing pitchers.

To round out the seniors playing in the infield there is Ed Karlik, our classy third baseman, who acquired an outstanding fielding average that contributed much to the team's success.

In the pitching department the team boasts two fine senior pitchers, Al Cohen and Mark Steinberg. Mark started the season with a no hitter against East Side and is the backbone of the pitching squad. Al Cohen, finishing his high school pitching career, hopes to continue his fine record.

Cheers for a hard-playing group!

The 1958-1959 basketball season was the most successful in Weequahic's history. The team went undefeated in City League competition to the crown for the third straight year. In the Essex County Tournament, Montclair upset Weequahic by two points. This team had beaten Weequahic that week by the same two points scored by the same opposition player. Weequahic bounced back in the State Tournament to beat Orange, the Essex County Champs, in a sudden-death overtime thriller. The boys went on to trounce Bloomfield, defending State Champs, Westfield, Union-County Champs, and Bayonne, Section 1, Group IV Champs. These victories were decisive, and Weequahic became known as the "Cinderella Team" after having been rated as an underdog in all three contests. In the finals, Weequahic met its match and lost to a great Camden team. In any event, the team holds the honor of being North Jersey Champs, a feat no other Weequahic team has been able to accomplish.

There are five senior players on the team who deserve recognition:

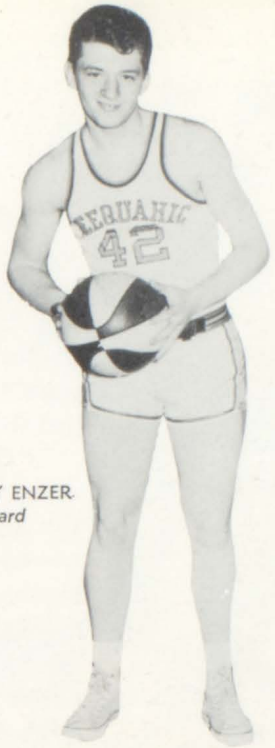

Steve Berkowitz, although not a starter, supplied spirit and added to our team's depth.

Harvey Glassman, our playmaker, exemplified a fine backcourt man. Harvey's best game was against St. Benedict's, when he scored 12 points.

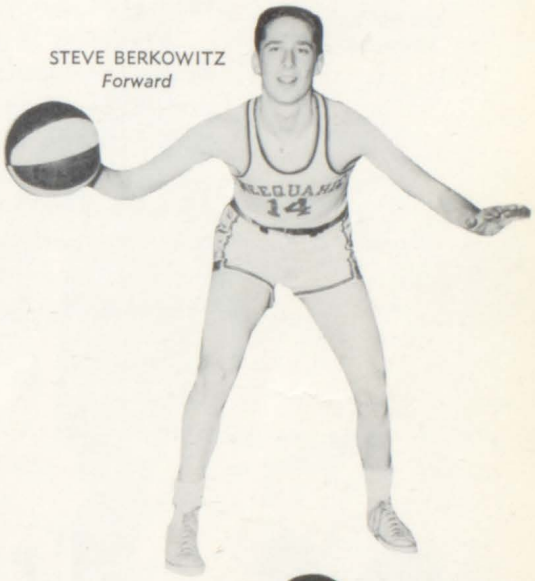

Danny Enzer and Jerry Field played an important part in Weequahic's control of the backboards and offensively were a valuable asset. Enzer, the sparkplug of the team, was consistently good on defense and played an outstanding game against Bayonne. Jerry Field, 6'2" forward, had his best game against the Union County Champs, Westfield, where he scored 17 points and was the key man in the team's offense in the first half.

The fifth man of the senior players is Gerry Greenspan, our 6'5" center, who this year made All-City, All-County, and Second Team Group IV, All-State. Greenspan used his height to great advantage taking down the greatest percentage of the team's rebounds. Gerry will be remembered, above all, for his excellent performance in the Orange game when he put in the winning basket.

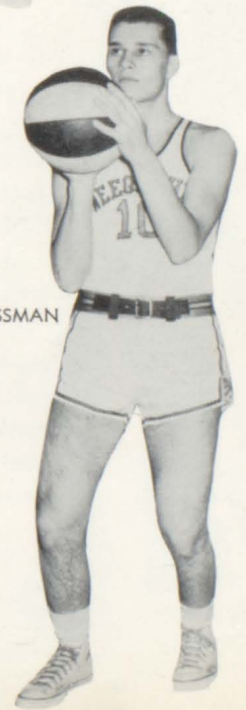

It is said that this year Weequahic was one of the best teams in the state, and so, it must be said: A tribute to Coach Les Fein.

GIL WILSON
Co-Captain

Coach Joe Nerenberg's Soccer Team of 1958 completed the season with a 9-4 record. But this does not tell the full story. In City League competition Weequahic lost only one game, and that to West Side. Due to the team's fine record, the boys were invited to play in the state tournament. In the first round, the boys were eliminated by a fine Kearny team which eventually won the state tournament.

At the end of this season, three of Weequahic's top senior men, who had been playing for three years, were recognized in the all-county and all-state selections. Gil Wilson, halfback, received honorable mention All-County and All-State. He was elected co-captain together with Barry Green, a fleet veteran. Allan Cohen, fullback, won honorable mention All-County, for he saved many a game with his fine defensive work. Oleh Dutkewych, a newcomer to our school, added some valuable goals at the right moments to earn himself a place on the second team All-County, and honorable mention All-State.

Playing in the halfback position, both Al Kurtz and Mike Brown contributed valuably to the team's play. Larry Weitzner and Bob Smorodin, both three year veterans, were valuable assets to the team. On offense, Bobby Gold, Elliot Urdang and Jerry Kaufman provided a strong second line; on defense, Howie Mandelbaum, fullback, and Bob Gabriner, goalie, contributed to the tight defense.

Arthur Hodes, manager for three seasons, helped to boost the team's spirit.

This year under the guidance of Coach Meyer "Spike" Schwartz, the Weequahic Cross-Country Team had its most successful season. The squad finished first in the City, second in the County, and fourth in the State. And it had its second straight undefeated season to make twenty-three consecutive dual meet victories.

The team was paced by co-captains Bob Mack and Frank Howard. This year Mack successfully defended his City-County and State cross country titles for which he holds the records. Frank Howard, in his third year of competition, was a valuable point winner all during the season, and finished twenty-fifth in the state.

GIL WILSON
Co-Captain

The Weequahic track team coached by Joe Nerenberg has always finished with a winning season.

Co-Captains of the team are Bob Mack and Gil Wilson, both four year members. Mack, at once our outstanding distance runner and an academician, has annexed the City, County, State, and National Inter-Scholastic mile championships.

Wilson, who competes in both the high and low hurdles, has done well in both events. However, he has two rivals in Barry Green and Vaughn Russell who are equally consistent point winners.

Ed Barker, our fleet sprinter, has been a valuable asset to the team in both the 220 and 100 yard dash.

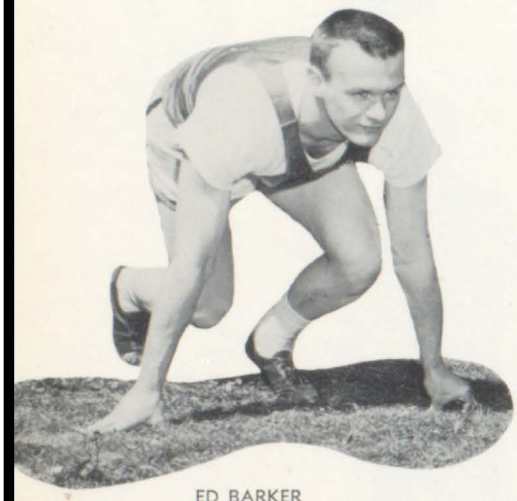

Bob Smorodin and Marv Rozansky, two greatly improved quarter-milers, have done well this season displaying both great competitive spirit and team spirit.

Barker and Mack ran on a state relay team, which, missing the state record by one second, copped the mile and seven-eighths medley championship.

These boys and their coach have shown what team spirit and willingness to work can produce — a winning team.

Football

The autumn months of 1958 saw Weequahic break through a foreboding string of 26 defeats to upset Linden for its first win in three years. Fans will also remember the Central and West Side games where Weequahic again broke through for two more exciting victories. The annual Thanksgiving game against Hillside concluded the season with a Weequahic record of three wins, five losses, and one tie (against Hillside).

Ed Barker, East Side transfer, shattered the school's all-time single season record with 79 points this season which enabled him to make the All-City Team. This 6' 2" fullback was the key to our Indian offense.

Sam Skuratofsky, a tackle who made All-City guard, has played for four years and was the bulwark of our line.

Gary Portnow, end for the past two years, figured in many of the key passing plays. Vaughn Russell was a dependable end who played as a team man.

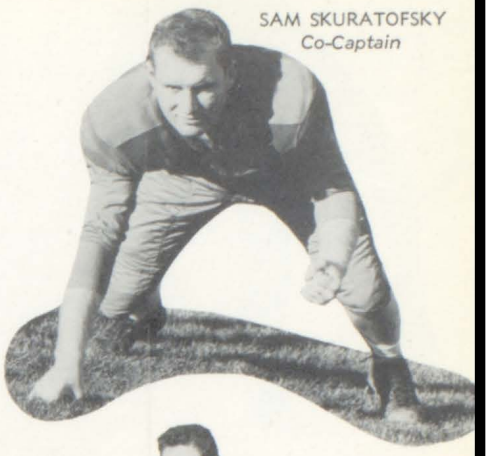

Lenny Gibbons, a running guard, ran also as a messenger relaying plays and strategy. Dave Crystal, another guard, was a hard worker and conscientious player.

Harvey Morantz, on the team for the first year, did a fine job of filling in the tackle position.

Coach Lou Stamelman's boys deserve great credit for the effort they put forth.

Swimming

SID FRIEDENBERG
Co-Captain

Success was the keynote of the swimming team's '58-'59 season. Coach Leo Pearl and his boys won their second consecutive City Championship to amass a new record total of 74 points in the City Meet competition. Also this year, the team won all of its dual meets to run their string of victories to 46 over a three and a half year period.

There are seven senior men on the team this year who have helped Weequahic maintain its swimming reputation. Danny Levy and Sid Friedenberg, co-captains of the team, have been honored for their accomplishments. Danny, a three year member of the team, has been awarded four gold medals in City League competition. This year he took a third in the 100 yard butterfly in the state meet. He holds two records in the city meet. Levy will additionally be remembered for his help in organizing the Sunday morning workouts at the B'nai Abraham pool. A four year member of the team, Friedenberg won two gold medals in his career. Sid swims the 200 yard freestyle and holds the record in the city.

A three year veteran is Neil Rothstein, who was a member of the winning freestyle relay team this season and received a gold medal for his noteworthy participation.

Two year man Sandy Baer, swims the breaststroke and was a member of the winning 160 yard relay team in the City Meet this year. Sandy received a gold medal, and the team itself was honored for breaking the city record.

Larry Nurin, this year's newcomer to the team, also swims the breaststroke. He provided additional strength to the team.

The other senior men are Howie Mandelbaum, a four year veteran, and Lenny Wolkstein. Howie has to his credit one gold medal awarded for his part in the freestyle relay team which broke the city record in the 1957-58 season. Lenny, unfortunately, was sick this year and could not contribute to the team but in the 1957-58 season was a valuable asset.

The last and first man who deserves much of the credit for the success of the team is Coach Leo Pearl. His guidance and fine training techniques were the integrating factors of success.
